Learning by Making Mistakes

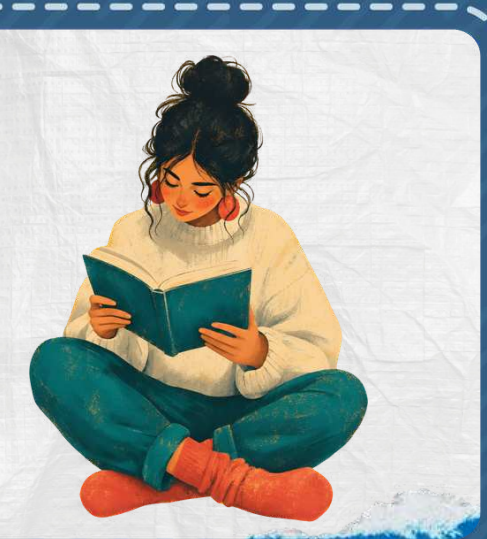

Mistakes can help us learn better

Making mistakes is a normal part of learning. When we make a mistake, we can understand what we need to improve. For example, when learning English, saying a wrong sentence can help us remember the correct sentence later. Instead of feeling bad about mistakes, we can use them as part of our learning process.

It is also important to practice regularly. We do not need to study for many hours every day. Even a short practice session can help us rememb er new words and grammar. When we practice, make mistakes, and try again, we can slowly become more confident.

EXERCISE 1 — Choose the best answer

What can a mistake help us do?

a) Understand what we need to improve

b) Stop learning

EXERCISE 2— True or False

We need to study for many hours every day to learn well.

a) True

b) False

EXERCISE 3 — Find the correct sentence

a) We can learn from our mistakes.

b) We can learns from our mistakes.

Keyboard

EXERCISE 1 ➤ A

EXERCISE 2 ➤ B

EXERCISE 3 ➤ A